e-Tailer Survivor Series

OrderMotion is a cross channel order management platform for growth. The Web based application has enabled hundreds of multi-channel businesses to grow their revenue without growing their staff and infrastructure.

The first segment of our e-Tailer Survivor Series demonstrates how 3 successful e-commerce businesses switched their order management systems to OrderMotion, and not only enabled growth, but gained a level of automation and order processing efficiency that allowed them to reduce their order administration and fulfillment staff as well.

OrderMotion's web-accessible order- and fulfillment-management system centralizes all aspects of a direct marketing company's back-end operations, including order capture, fulfillment, inventory management, payment processing, database management, and reports generation. And it's not just for e-tailers. OrderMotion integrates all order channels into one convenient platform for optimal control and information gathering. Whether orders come in from mail, phone, fax, the internet or a combination of all four, OrderMotion can seamlessly capture them and report on them in real time.

And as a web-based application there is no software to install and you no longer have to worry about software bugs and patches, hardware to buy and maintain, human errors from manual processes, disruptions from upgrades, difficulty in tracking results, and the complexities of using customer and sales information to improve ROI.

If you are unhappy with your current order processing system, you owe to yourself to try OrderMotion – your business growth depends on it.
